

Comparison between expected and observed distributions of number of occurrences, after aggregating in formations

