

Comparison between expected and observed distributions of number of occurrences, after sampling

